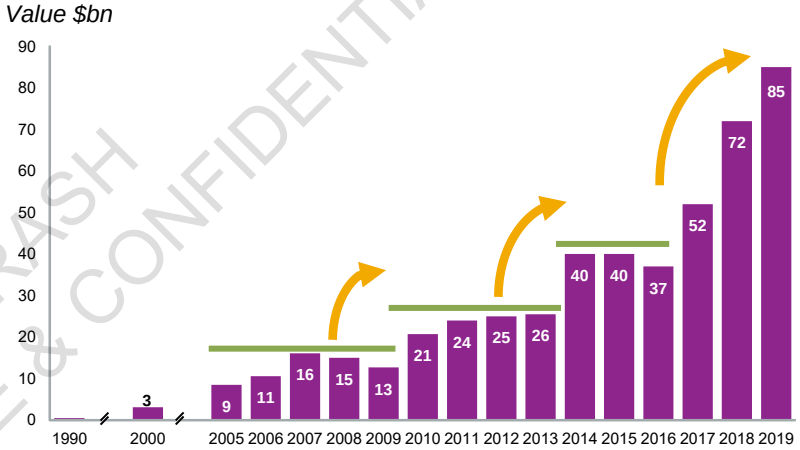
Private Equity Secondaries Market[1]

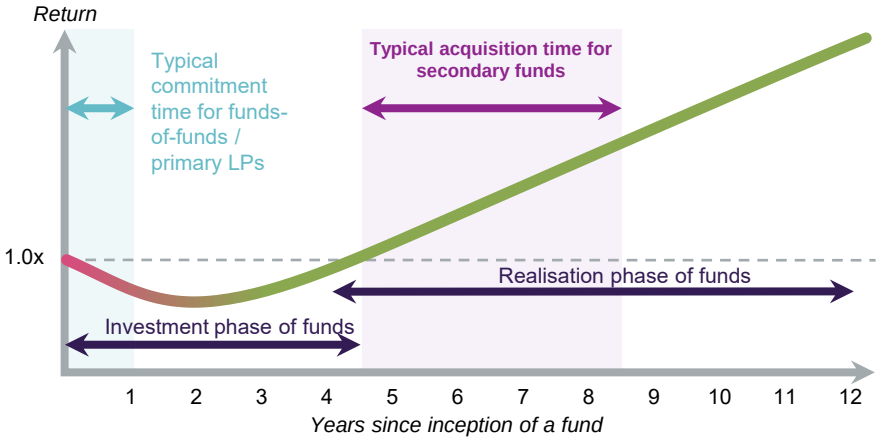
Growth in PE Secondaries Market is Being Driven by Secular Trends

- The private equity secondaries market provides the only solution for PE investors (LPs) to exit early from their illiquid PE fund investments (ten or more years of life)
- The market's growth has tracked the rapid expansion of the primary market, allowing PE investors:
  - to achieve early liquidity from their PE assets
  - to manage their portfolios more proactively
  - to modify their business models in response to regulatory or strategic change
- The market was initially limited to the sale and purchase of LP interests in individual or portfolios of private equity funds and has since evolved to include interests in private companies not held within private equity funds (direct secondaries).
- In recent years, GP-led (as opposed to investor/LP-led) secondaries have also become an increasingly important part of the market.
- Investors are attracted to secondary funds for two key reasons among other factors: i) mitigation of the 'J-curve' as secondary funds typically acquire seasoned PE holdings and ii) diversification as secondary funds are diversified by investment strategy, geography, industry sector, and manager.

Strong Market Growth of Secondary Transaction Volume



Mitigating the 'J-Curve'



LP Secondaries (PE fund positions)	Sale by LPs of positions in private equity funds
Direct Secondaries (Assets not held within funds)	Sale by corporations or financial institutions of directly-held investments
GP-Led Secondaries (Assets held within PE funds)	Sale of some or all of the remaining LP stakes or assets to a new investor, often enabling existing investors to remain within the fund

Class I Subordinated Notes Additional Details

All Information in this section regarding the Manager and its affiliates was provided by the Manager and Morgan Stanley has not verified any of this information and is not responsible for the accuracy or the completeness of such information.

Past performance is not indicative of future results which will vary. There is no assurance that investment objectives will be achieved.

The projected yields and cashflows provided below are presented on a hypothetical basis for illustrative purposes only and are based on an extensive set of assumptions, many of which are described below. Prospective purchasers should be aware that the realization of the assumptions on which the projections below are based is subject to significant uncertainties and contingencies.

Prospective investors in the Class I Subordinated Notes should make their own determination of various assumptions and the impact of such assumptions upon the results shown in below. None of the Issuer, Morgan Stanley or the Manager or any of their respective affiliates make any representation that the assumptions used for the returns below will be representative of actual experience.

The assumptions on which the projections below are based are necessarily arbitrary, do not reflect historical experience with respect to securities similar to the Class I Subordinated notes and do not constitute a prediction as to future events. Accordingly, because of the uncertainties and subjective judgements inherent in such projections and because events and circumstances frequently do not occur as expected, there can be no assurance that the hypothetical results represented below will be realized. The actual returns on the Class I Subordinated notes will differ, and may differ materially, from those illustrated below.

The information related to the Manager and its affiliates included in this section will be superseded by the information relating to the Manager and its affiliates in the Offering Circular relating to the Securities. Class I Subordinated Notes

Key Highlights relative to a direct PE Fund investment

Class I Subordinated Notes are 100% Cash funded on Day 1, generate 2.3x MOIC when CIP VIII generates 1.65x MOIC, and benefit from credit enhancement resulting from subordination of the Class II Subordinated Notes[1]

- 100% cash funded day one: In the base case of a direct PE Fund investment, only 80% of committed capital is drawn over the life of the fund, and that 80% is drawn over the course of the 5 year investment period. An investment in the Class I Subordinated Notes removes uncertainty regarding both the timing and amount of future capital calls (see "Hypothetical Equity Returns Comparison – CIP VIII Manager Base Case Model").
- Higher multiple on invested capital (MOIC)[1]: Class I Subordinated Notes deliver a 2.3x MOIC in the base case under which CIP VIII delivers a 1.65x MOIC for direct LPs. Under the base case assumptions, Class I Subordinated Notes will deliver a higher MOIC than a direct LP commitment when the underlying CIP VIII MOIC is above 1.26x (Coller funds have historically never realized a MOIC below 1.4x) (See "Return on Invested Capital Comparison").
- Class II Subordinated Notes subordination provides credit enhancement to Class I Subordinated Notes: Class II Subordinated Notes will not receive any distributions until the Class I Subordinated Notes have received distributions equal to their initial par amount. This lowers the impairment threshold for Investor Equity from 1.16x down to 1.05x under base case assumptions (see "Subordinated Notes Comparison").
- Other key highlights: (i) Additional ongoing expenses at transaction level of only ~10 bps admin/management fee and $186,000 annual fixed fee; (ii) Rated Notes provide built-in, day-one, long-term leverage to the Class I Subordinated Note investors which may be difficult to acquire for a direct LP; and (iii) A qualifying large investor in Class I Subordinated Notes will be considered for any co-investment opportunities alongside CIP VIII, as if it were a $600MM direct investor in the fund (assuming an aggregate offering size of Private Equity Backed Notes of $510MM).

SECTION 7

Certain Risk Factors

ADAM MARASH
STRICTLY PRIVATE & CONFIDENTIAL

This section summarizes certain risks that may be material to an investment in the Securities. It is not exhaustive and the final risk factors relating to an investment in the Securities will be disclosed in the Offering Circular relating to the Securities, which will supersede and replace the information set out in this section in its entirety. Accordingly, none of Morgan Stanley, the Manager or its affiliates assumes any responsibility or liability for the contents of this document or makes any representation or warranty with respect to its contents.

The information contained herein is not intended to be, and does not constitute, advice from Morgan Stanley. Morgan Stanley is not your advisor (municipal, financial or any other kind of advisor) and is not acting in a fiduciary capacity. This information was prepared by Morgan Stanley sales, trading, banking or other non-research personnel. Certain information herein was prepared based on materials provided by the Manager. This is not a research report and the views or information contained herein should not be viewed as independent of the interests of Morgan Stanley trading desks. To the extent any prices or price levels are noted, they are for informational purposes only and are not intended for use by third parties, and are indicative as of the date shown and are not a commitment by Morgan Stanley to trade at any price. Please see "Important Information" and "Legal Disclaimers" herein.

Certain Risk Factors(1)

Category	Description
General	Investments in the Class A Notes and the Class B Notes (together with the Class A Notes, the "Rated Notes") and Class I Subordinated Notes and Class II Subordinated Notes (together with the Class I Subordinated Notes, the "Subordinated Notes," and the Rated Notes together with the Subordinated Notes, the "Notes") issued by the Issuer involve a number of risks and there can be no assurance that the full (or any) amount invested in the Notes will be returned or that a positive rate of return on the Notes will be achieved. This section highlights a limited number of those risks, but is not and does not purport to be a complete list of the risks inherent in an investment in the Notes. Except as otherwise stated, these Risk Factors are applicable to all classes of Notes, although the degree of risk associated with each class of Notes will vary. There may be additional risks not described below or not presently known or currently deemed immaterial or remote that turn out to be material. Investors should read the preliminary and final Offering Circular in its entirety, including the description of risk factors and disclaimers contained in the preliminary and final Offering Circular, prior to making a decision to invest in the Notes. The information set forth in this presentation shall be superseded in its entirety by any subsequent versions of this information and by the preliminary and final Offering Circular relating to the Notes (including the section on risk factors/investment considerations set forth therein). In addition, this summary as well as the more comprehensive list of risk factors in the preliminary and final Offering Circular do not take into account an investor's particular situation, liquidity needs, regulatory capital requirements, tax status, existing holdings or leverage, all of which should be considered in making an investment decision.
Experienced Investors	The investment in the Notes involves a high degree of risk and is only considered appropriate for sophisticated or professional investors who can afford the speculative risk associated with trading in these markets and products. Each potential investor must have enough knowledge and experience in financial and business matters to be capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment. Each investor represents that it satisfies these and the other criteria set forth herein.
Reliance on the Manager	The Manager will have exclusive responsibility for management and oversight of the Issuer and the PE Fund. Investors in the Notes will not have the right to make or evaluate any investment made by the PE Fund, or other decisions concerning management of the PE Fund and its assets (the "Portfolio Investments"). Accordingly, investors in the Notes are dependent upon the judgment and ability of the Manager to select investments and invest and manage the capital of the PE Fund and the Portfolio Investments, and investors are therefore generally subject to the risks associated with making an investment in the PE Fund itself. No potential investor who is unwilling to entrust all aspects of the management of the Issuer, the PE Fund, and the PE Fund's investments to the Manager should invest in the Notes. The success of the PE Fund (and thereby of the Issuer) will be largely dependent on the managerial expertise of the investment professionals acting on behalf of the Manager. If one or more of such investment professionals were to leave their employment or otherwise be unavailable to the Manager, the Manager would have to procure the services of replacement employees, and such a departure could have a material adverse effect on the performance of the PE Fund's portfolio.
Risk Related to Secondary Investments and Secondary Funds	The Manager will commit the Issuer's assets to funds managed by the Manager ("Manager Funds") that pursue a secondary markets investment program. Secondary acquisitions may result in the Manager Funds acquiring contingent liabilities of the seller of such interests, which liabilities may or may not be recoverable from the seller. Further, the Manager may have the opportunity to acquire a portfolio of investment funds from a seller on an "all or nothing" basis. Certain of the investment funds in the portfolio may be less attractive than others and certain of the sponsors of such investment funds may be more familiar to the Manager than others, or may be more experienced or highly regarded than others. In such cases, it may not be possible for the Manager to carve out from such purchases those investments which the Manager considers (for commercial, tax, legal or other reasons) less attractive. In addition, each of the funds in which the Manager Funds invest through secondary investments generally (i) pays (or requires its limited partners to pay) its respective general partner and investment advisor or manager certain fees, and (ii) bears certain costs and expenses. Such fees and expenses are expected to materially reduce the actual returns to limited partners, although the impact of such fees and expenses on investment returns may be reduced by time and discounts associated with the initial acquisition of funds acquired through secondary transactions. Accordingly, the Issuer will be subject to management fees and/or carried interest on, and costs and expenses in respect of, its indirect investments in such Manager Funds and such other underlying funds in which those Manager Funds invest, which may give rise to conflicts of interest and multiple levels of fees and performance based compensation payable to the Manager. Such fees and expenses are expected to materially reduce the actual returns to the Issuer.

SUMMARY PRIVILEGED & CONFIDENTIAL

Notes:
1. Investors should read the final Offering Circular relating to the Notes in its entirety, including the description of the risk factors/investment considerations contained therein, prior to making a decision to invest in the Notes

Category	Description
Subordinated Investments	The Issuer will invest in securities (including equity interests and the Cash Investment) of Portfolio Investments that are structurally subordinated to the claims of creditors of the Portfolio Investments. Investments in equity and the Cash Investment will be unsecured and may be subordinated to substantial amounts of senior indebtedness, all or a significant portion of which may be secured, and may subject the Issuer to a "first loss" subordinate holder position relative to other lenders to and creditors of the Portfolio Investments. Investments in such securities have a higher risk of loss and credit default than secured loans and may absorb losses before loans, debt securities or other extensions of credit to the Portfolio Investments.
Market Volatility	Markets may at times be volatile and values of individual securities, fixed income instruments and other investments may decline significantly in response to adverse issuer, political, regulatory, market, economic or other developments that may cause broad changes in market value, public perceptions concerning these developments, and adverse investor sentiment. In particular, the value of equity securities may decline due to general market conditions which are not specifically related to a particular company or to factors affecting a particular industry or industries. If the Manager sells a portfolio position before it reaches its market peak, it may miss out on opportunities for better performance.
No Recourse/Subordination	Each class of Rated Notes is subordinated on each Payment Date to certain amounts payable by the Issuer to other parties, and the Class B Notes are subordinated to the Class A Notes. The Subordinated Notes are subordinated on each Payment Date to the Rated Notes and other fees and expenses as set forth in the Priority of Payments. The Rated Notes are limited recourse obligations of the Issuer, payable solely from the assets specified in the indenture relating to the Notes (the "Indenture"). To the extent that any losses are suffered by the holders of any Notes, such losses will be borne first by the holders of the Subordinated Notes, and then by the holders of the Rated Notes in inverse order of seniority, as further described below. None of the Manager, Morgan Stanley or any of their respective affiliates will have any obligation to make payments of principal, interest or dividends on any of the Notes.
No Ongoing Responsibility	Morgan Stanley will have no obligation to monitor the performance of the investments of the Issuer or any Portfolio Investment or the actions of the Manager, the Issuer or any Portfolio Investment and will have no authority to advise the Manager, the Issuer or any Portfolio Investment or to direct their actions, which will be solely the responsibility of the Manager and /or the Issuer or Portfolio Investment, as the case may be.
No Operating History	The Issuer is a newly organized entity and has no prior operating history or track record. Accordingly, the Issuer does not have a performance history for a prospective investor to consider in making its decision to invest in the Notes.
Optional Redemption of Notes	The holders of the majority of the aggregate outstanding principal amount of the Subordinated Notes may cause the Rated Notes to be redeemed after the expiration of the Non-Call Period.
Highly Competitive Market for Investment Opportunities	Identifying, closing and realizing attractive private equity investments that fall within the investment mandate of the Manager and the criteria set forth in the investment guidelines is highly competitive. A failure by the Manager to identify attractive investment opportunities will adversely impact the Issuer and its ability to make payments in respect of the Notes.

Category	Description
Illiquidity of the Interests in the Private Equity Investments	No assurance can be given that, if the Manager determined to dispose of a particular private equity investment, it could dispose of such investment at a prevailing market price and there is a risk that disposition of such investment may require a lengthy time period. It is expected that the Manager will be prohibited by contract or legal or regulatory reasons from selling or transferring private equity investments without first obtaining certain applicable consents. In addition, as investments are realized by such private equity funds, distributions generated on the Portfolio Investments (and therefore indirectly on the Issuer's investments) may be reinvested by the manager of such private equity fund into other investment opportunities. Such reinvestment may cause the asset allocations and composition of the Issuer's investments to change over time and could result in an increased proportion of the Issuer's assets being invested in Portfolio Investments that hold illiquid assets.
Investments in Private Equity Funds Involve Special Risks	Private equity funds may invest in leveraged buyouts which by their nature require companies to undertake a high ratio of leverage to available income. Leveraged portfolio entities are inherently more sensitive to declines in revenues and increases in expenses. The Portfolio Investments, directly or indirectly through private equity funds, may invest in investments that will not be liquidated for a number of years after the initial investment. Factors such as overall economic conditions, the competitive environment and the availability of potential acquirers may shorten or lengthen the applicable holding period of such investments. The return of capital and the realization of gains, if any, will occur only upon the partial or complete disposition or refinancing of such investment. The Portfolio Investments, directly or indirectly through private equity funds, may invest in private illiquid securities, which are normally subject to restrictions on resale. In some cases, the Portfolio Investments or such funds may be prohibited from selling such securities for a period of time, selling such securities to certain investors unless they meet certain criteria or otherwise be restricted from disposing of such securities. Furthermore, the types of investments made may require a substantial length of time to liquidate. As a result, there is a significant risk that the Portfolio Investments or such funds may be unable to realize their investment objectives by sale or other disposition of their investments at attractive prices or will otherwise be unable to complete any exit strategy. The Portfolio Investments, directly or indirectly through private equity funds, may invest in restructurings that involve portfolio entities that are experiencing or are expected to experience severe financial difficulties, which may never be overcome. Such investments could, in certain circumstances, subject the Portfolio Investments or such funds to certain additional potential liabilities, which may exceed the value of the Issuer's or such fund's original investments therein. The Portfolio Investments or the private equity funds in which they invest may take controlling interests in certain portfolio entities, or be deemed to do so. The exercise of control over a company may impose risks of additional liability for underfunded pensions, environmental damage, product defects, failure to supervise management, violation of governmental regulations (including securities laws) or other types of liability in which the limited liability generally characteristic of business ownership may be ignored. The Portfolio Investments or the private equity funds in which they invest may make minority equity investments in entities where the Portfolio Investments or the relevant funds do not effectively control or influence the business or affairs of such entities. Under such circumstances, there is the possibility that the entity in which a Portfolio Investment's or a private equity fund's investments are made will have economic or business interests or goals that are inconsistent with those of the Portfolio Investment and/or the private equity fund, or the relevant private equity fund may not be in a position to limit or otherwise protect the value of its investment in the entity.
Risks Relating to Due Diligence of Investments	When conducting due diligence and making an assessment regarding an investment, the Manager will rely on the resources available to it, including information provided by a counterparty and, in some circumstances, third-party investigations. However, representations made by a counterparty could be inaccurate, and third-party investigations may not uncover risks. As a result, due diligence investigations conducted with respect to any investment opportunity may not reveal or highlight all relevant facts necessary or helpful to make the investment decision. In particular, there can be no assurance that the Manager will be able to detect irregular accounting, employee misconduct or other fraudulent practices during a due diligence investigation.

Category	Description
Reliance on Portfolio Company Management and Third Parties	The day-to-day operations of each portfolio company of a private equity fund in which the Issuer (through a Portfolio Investment) invests will be the responsibility of the portfolio company's management team. There can be no assurance that the management team of any portfolio company will operate in accordance with the expectations of such private equity fund's or Portfolio Investment's general partner or manager. Moreover, portfolio companies can lose employees, as the market for high performing executive talent is competitive. There can be no assurance that portfolio companies will be able to attract, develop and retain suitable management team members over the life of a private equity fund.
Risk of Fraud	Instances of fraud and other deceptive practices committed by senior management of certain private equity funds or portfolio companies in which the Issuer (through Portfolio Investments) invests may undermine the Issuer's due diligence efforts with respect to such private equity funds or portfolio companies, and may negatively affect the valuation of the Portfolio Investments.
Valuation	The value of investments in private equity funds will be determined by the issuers or administrators of the relevant private equity funds. The Manager has only limited access to the portfolio information of such private equity funds and thus the Manager may have a limited ability or no ability to independently verify the valuation information provided thereto.
Failure to Make Payments	Generally, the constituent documents for a private equity fund will provide for penalties in the event that an investor (such as a Portfolio Investment) fails to satisfy a capital call pursuant to such investor's capital commitment, and such penalties may be severe. There is typically a short grace period during which interest accrues on the unpaid amount. If the default continues beyond the grace period, the defaulting investor may become subject to severe sanctions, including termination of the investor's right to participate in future investments by the related private equity fund, loss of its entitlement to distributions or income but not its liability for losses or partnership expenses, loss of voting rights, mandatory transfer or sale of such investor's interest in the private equity fund at a discount, continuing liability for interest in respect of the defaulted amount, partial or total forfeiture of the investor's interest in the private equity fund and liability for any other rights and remedies (including legal remedies) the general partner and/or investment advisor of such private equity fund may have against the investor. Any failure by a Portfolio Investment to meet any capital call with respect to a private equity fund may have a material adverse effect on the Portfolio Investment and on the Issuer's ability to make payments on the Notes.
Fee Structure	The Issuer will be subject to both management fees and other expenses and will indirectly be subject to management fees and carried interests or allocations and other indirect expenses (e.g., organizational expenses, partnership expenses and so forth) at the Portfolio Investment level. As a result, the Issuer will incur, in the aggregate, higher fees than would be incurred by a direct investment in a Portfolio Investment that was not made via a purchase of the Notes.
Capital Requirements of Insurance Companies	Applicable insurance laws and regulations place significant limits on the types of assets in which insurance companies can invest. Such limits include quantitative limits on the amount of assets that may be held by an insurer based on the credit quality, asset class, jurisdiction, currency, issuer, or level and type of collateral supporting a particular investment, as well as qualitative limits on the types of assets that can be held by an insurer. None of the Issuer or any affiliate thereof makes any representation as to whether an investment in the Notes is a permitted investment for any insurance company under applicable insurance laws and regulations. Accordingly, any insurance company investing in the Notes should carefully consider whether such an investment is permitted under applicable insurance laws and regulations. Additionally, investments in the Notes by U.S. domiciled insurers in which the Issuer or any of its or its Affiliates hold significant equity investments or otherwise exercise control may require substantial prior notice to and receipt of an approval or non-disapproval from the state insurance department in such insurer's state of domicile. Applicable insurance laws and regulations also require insurance companies to hold capital against the risk that an investment will default or lose value. None of the Issuer or any Affiliate thereof makes any representation as to any amount of capital that an insurance company investing in the Notes may be required to hold against the risk that the Notes will default or lose value. The amount of any such required capital may change over time, and there can be no assurances that the Manager will manage the investments of the Issuer to achieve any particular capital treatment of the Notes. Accordingly, any insurance company investing in the Notes should carefully consider the level of capital it will need to hold against an investment in the Notes and the risk that such capital levels may change over time.

Lack of Liquidity	The Notes will be subject to significant restrictions on transfer. The Notes should be viewed as long term investments, not as trading vehicles. There can be no assurance that there will be any secondary market for the Notes. The lack of an established, liquid secondary market for some of the Portfolio Investments may have an adverse effect on the market value of the Portfolio Investments and on the Manager's ability to dispose of them. The market for some of the Portfolio Investments may become illiquid from time to time as a result of adverse market conditions, regulatory developments or other circumstances. Additionally, Portfolio Investments will be subject to certain other transfer restrictions that may contribute to illiquidity. Therefore, no assurance can be given that, if the Manager determined to dispose of all or a substantial portion of a particular investment, it could dispose of such investment, particularly at any previously prevailing market price or any specific valuation level.
Ratings Not Necessarily Indicative of Asset Quality	The ratings assigned to the Rated Notes by the rating agencies are not necessarily indicative of the quality of the Rated Notes. Credit ratings only represent the rating agencies' opinions of credit quality and are not a recommendation to buy, sell or hold assets. They do not purport to assess market, regulatory or other risks that are relevant to the assessment of the quality of an asset. Credit ratings may not accurately assess credit risk and may be reduced or withdrawn at any time. The rating agencies may modify their ratings criteria at any time and the ratings of the Rated Notes may be reduced or withdrawn as a consequence. In addition, the ratings of the Rated Notes could be reduced or withdrawn at any time without a change in rating agency methodology as a result of changes in economic conditions, conditions in the financial or private equity markets or a variety of other factors. A reduction in the ratings of the Rated Notes will have negative consequences to holders. A reduction of the ratings of a Rated Note may, for regulated entities, cause adverse effects on the value of the Rated Notes as a legal investment or the capital treatment of the Rated Notes.
Securitization Regulation	Investors should be aware of (Regulation (EU) 2017/2402) aiming to create a general European framework for securitization and a specific framework for "simple, transparent and standardised" securitization (the "Securitization Regulation") which entered into force on the twentieth day thereafter. The Securitization Regulation applies to securitizations the securities of which are issued on or after 1 January 2019. The Securitization Regulation imposes obligation on EU originators, sponsors, original lenders and special purposes entities when they issue and/or invest in securitizations. While the Issuer believes the issuance of the Notes does not constitute a securitization as defined the Securitization Regulation and thus the transaction herein will not be structured to comply, there can be no assurances or guarantees that an applicable regulator may not take a different view. Each investor in the Notes that is subject to the Securitization Regulation should make its own determination as to whether an investment in the Notes constitutes a securitization for the purposes of the Securitization Regulation. None of the Issuer, the Manager, Morgan Stanley (in any capacity), the Trustee, the Collateral Administrator or their respective affiliates or any other person makes any representation, warranty or guarantee that an investment in the Notes does not constitute a securitization under the Securitization Regulation or are in compliance with any other applicable legal regulatory or other requirements. No such person shall have any liability to any prospective investor in the Notes should a determination be made by any person that an investment in the Notes constitutes a securitization for the purposes of the Securitization Regulation.

Legal Disclaimers, Important Terms and Notices – Coller Capital[1]

The information contained herein is for informational and discussion purposes only and is not, and may not be relied on in any manner as, legal, tax or investment advice, any recommendation or opinion regarding the appropriateness or suitability of any investment or strategy, or as an offer to sell or a solicitation of an offer to buy an interest in the PE Fund.

Nothing contained in this document shall be deemed to be binding against, or to create any obligations or commitment on the part of, Coller or its affiliates ("Coller Capital"). Coller Capital does not undertake to provide any recipient with access to any additional information or to update this document or to correct any inaccuracies herein which may become apparent, provided that Coller Capital may do so at any time without any obligation to give notice to any recipient.

Any forward-looking statements, forecasts, projections, valuations or results herein are based upon current assumptions, may be simplified and may depend on events outside of Coller Capital's control. Changes to any assumptions may have a material impact on any forecasts, projections, valuations or results. Actual results may therefore be materially different from any forecast, opinion, projection, valuation or result herein.

In considering the performance information contained in this presentation, recipients should bear in mind that:

- Past or projected performance is not a guarantee, projection or prediction and is not indicative of future results. There can be no assurance that any current or future investments will achieve results comparable to historic results or that any investments objectives or return targets will be met;
- Risk of loss accompanies the potential for any gains on investments;
- Coller Funds are investors in funds, portfolios of companies or other assets managed or advised by independent managers who are responsible for their valuation. As such, Coller Capital uses third party data as a source (although not necessarily as a determining factor) for any valuations and such data have not been independently audited or verified by Coller Capital;
- Quartile data or other fund rankings are published by third-party providers, are subject to change and may not accurately reflect the performance of Coller Funds and other funds as underlying calculation methodologies and relevant metrics may differ significantly. Rankings are not endorsements of, or expressions of opinion regarding, Coller Funds;
- There can be no assurance that investments will be realised at any valuations shown or referenced in this presentation, and actual realised returns will depend on, among other factors, future operating results, the value of assets and market conditions at the time of disposition, any related transaction costs, and the timing and manner of sale, all of which may differ from the assumptions on which any valuations are based;
- Where applicable, results shown give effect to the 'recycling' of the investment proceeds either by the relevant Coller Fund or its investment vehicles or by third-party managers;
- Internal rate of return ("IRR") and other Coller Fund performance metrics shown or referenced in this presentation do not reflect the returns realised by any particular investor but have been calculated on an aggregated basis, typically blending returns from specific fund vehicles and/or returns of different classes or series of interests in Coller Funds. In some cases, the methodologies used in calculating performance metrics differ from one Coller Fund to another;
- IRR calculations and percentages are impacted and may be increased (in some cases significantly) by the use of financing either by the relevant Coller Fund or its investment vehicles or by third-party managers. In some cases, other performance metrics are impacted and may be increased by the use of financing as well;
- In Coller Capital's experience, secondaries funds such as the Coller Funds typically exhibit higher IRR percentages earlier in their lives, which tend to decrease as the funds mature; and
- Any Gross multiple or Gross IRR figures or other gross performance information do not reflect the deduction of priority profit share, management fees, carried interest and expenses, which in the aggregate are substantial (as described in the relevant Coller Fund offering documents). The return to an investor in any Coller Fund was or will be reduced by the priority profit share, management fees and expenses incurred by that Coller Fund, as reflected in the corresponding Net multiple and Net IRR figures. Unless stated otherwise, performance information for any Coller Fund contained herein has been prepared on the basis of aggregating and blending returns for holders of different classes or series of limited partner interests in each Coller Fund.

Prospective Investors should attach correspondingly qualified considerations to such performance information.
